

LABOUR ECONOMICS

Official Journal of the European Association of Labour Economists

Aims and Scope

Labour Economics is devoted to publishing research in the field of labour economics both on the micro-economic and on the macroeconomic level, in a balanced mix of theory, empirical testing and policy applications. It gives due recognition to analysis and explanation of institutional arrangements of national labour markets and the impact of these institutions on labour market outcomes.

From time to time Labour Economics publishes review articles and sections on special topics, promising new theoretical developments, comparative labour market policies or subjects that have the attention of labour economists and labour market students in general. Special issues of Labour Economics are available for the publication of high quality conference papers.

Labour Economics is now adopting a policy of publishing papers only if the data used in the analysis are clearly and precisely documented, and are readily available to any researcher for purposes of replication. Details of the computations sufficient to permit replication must be available from the authors, and a note provided at the start of the paper to this effect. The Editor should be notified at the time of submission if the data used in a paper are proprietary, or if, for some other reason, the above requirements cannot be met.
